

Kitchen for the Intelligentsia

Categories: Institutions

August 24, 1940, a kitchen created for people representing intelligentsia and respected bourgeois circles, impoverished during the war.

The Kitchen for the Intelligentsia was particularly well stocked with food and surpassed other kitchens in this respect, as in addition to hearty, good soups, it also served vegetables and meat for the main course. Registration there was very desirable, but also difficult. In the autumn of 1942, its status was leveled with the other kitchens. It is not without significance that it was led by the Women's Committee, headed by the sister-in-law of the Chairman, Helena Rumkowska.

Bernard Ostrowski

Resources

Encyclopedia, p. 99.

References

Kitchen for the Intelligentsia was officially marked with number 2 and located at 10 Ceglana St. In January 1941, it distributed 1,100 meals a day, and in July 1942, 560 (Kronika, vol. 1, p. 119; vol. 2, p. 378).

Tags

Jewish administration provisions starvation women social welfare

sanitary conditions everyday life

Updated: 16-03-2026

Added: 30-07-2023